

Abstract of the Disclosure

In a system and method for alarming an incoming message of a mobile communication terminal, incoming message alarming information indicating incoming message's arrival is transmitted over the Internet by using a messenger to a personal computer (PC) which a called subscriber has logged in. Thus, even when the mobile communication terminal is in a vibration mode or lamp mode, the incoming message's arrival may easily be perceived and the content of the incoming message may be obtained without using the mobile communication terminal.